Table of Contents

ABSTRACT i

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS iii

GLOSSING CONVENTIONS iv

TABLE OF CONTENTS v

LIST OF FIGURES viii

LIST OF TABLES ix

LIST OF DEFINITIONS AND PRINCIPLES x

1 INTRODUCTION 1

1.1 Aspectual classes 1

1.1.1 Aspectual classifications 1

1.1.2 Accomplishments and achievements 4

1.1.3 Previous classifications of Vendler's achievements 6

1.1.4 Ontology and terminology to be assumed 9

1.2 Issues and proposal 11

1.3 Structure of the dissertation 16

2 THE CORE DATA AND A REVIEW OF THE RELEVANT THEORIES 21

2.1 Vendler's achievements in the scope of the progressive 21

2.1.1 The progressive as an aspectual operator 21

2.1.2 Readings of the progressive of Vendler's achievements 23

2.2 Previous analyses of progressive achievements 29

2.2.1 Charting existing approaches 29

2.2.2 Culminations entailing a change with temporal extent 33

2.2.3 A lexicalization approach 36

2.2.4 Type shifting approaches . . . 39
2.2.5 A non-partitive semantics for the progressive . . . 44
2.3 Scale-based frameworks . . . 45
2.3.1 Scales in formal semantic analysis . . . 45
2.3.2 Former scale-based frameworks for aspectual analysis . . . 48

3 THE POINT OF DEPARTURE FOR A NEW ACCOUNT OF PROGRESSIVE ACHIEVEMENTS 55
3.1 Durativity . . . 55
3.1.1 The linguistic relevance of durativity . . . 55
3.1.2 The moment of change . . . 58
3.2 Existential presupposition of culminations . . . 60
3.2.1 Culminations as presupposition triggers . . . 60
3.2.2 Extra soft presuppositions and the reverse direction . . . 63
3.3 The basic ingredients . . . 67
3.3.1 The semantic model . . . 67
3.3.2 Scales . . . 69

4 SLOW-MOTION INTERPRETATIONS 73
4.1 The granularity parameter . . . 73
4.1.1 Granularity functions . . . 74
4.1.2 Higher-order granularity parameters . . . 79
4.2 Granularity-dependence and slow-motion readings . . . 89
4.2.1 Granularity-induced changes in durativity . . . 89
4.2.2 Granularity-relative temporal trace and durativity . . . 90
4.2.3 Constraining granularity and explaining slow-motion readings . . . 94
4.3 Implications of the granularity-based account . . . 99
4.3.1 Durativity and vagueness . . . 99
4.3.2 Endpoints and vagueness . . . 101
4.3.3 Minimal parts and granularity . . . 104

5 PRELIMINARY PROCESS INTERPRETATIONS 115
5.1 Scales of change . . . 115
5.1.1 The scale of change as a series of snapshot characterisations . . . 116
5.1.2 The mapping to the scale of change . . . 122
5.1.3 Predicate-level scales . . . 125
5.2 Scale structures by aspectual class . . . 135

5.2.1 Primary scale structures . . . 135
5.2.2 Differentiating types of Vendler's achievements . . . 138
5.2.3 Verbs and verb phrases . . . 139
5.3 The progressive . . . 142
5.3.1 Integrating a definition of the progressive into the framework . . . 142
5.3.2 The components of the progressive . . . 144
5.3.3 False positives and negatives and the role of the contrast set . . . 152
5.4 Culminations and happenings in the progressive . . . 156
5.4.1 Deriving progressive culminations and happenings . . . 156
5.4.2 No partial completion . . . 158
5.4.3 Complements of aspectual verbs . . . 162
5.5 Imminency and other characteristics . . . 164
5.5.1 Implication of imminency . . . 165
5.5.2 Probability of success . . . 166
5.5.3 Imminency instead of stages . . . 167
5.5.4 Modification by agentive adverbials . . . 168
5.6 Beyond English . . . 170
5.6.1 The Russian imperfective and the Hindi perfective . . . 171
5.6.2 The restricted progressive in Hungarian . . . 172

6 CONCLUSION 175

BIBLIOGRAPHY 179

APPENDICES 191

A The mathematical concepts used in the dissertation . . . 191

B The scalar trace . . . 195